

BRISK DEMAND FOR BRICK

Redcliff brick is of such superior quality that it is impossible for the factory here even with its modern and extensive plant to supply the customers who wish to have orders filled. In Medicine Hat the brick is winning special favor and it will be used in the construction of the Hull Block, the Becker Block and the Imperial Bank Block and the C.P.R. station.

The common brick output of the plant has been sold since September and orders to be filled even further on have been received.

The company had been so rushed that it has been forced during the past three weeks to turn down orders for over a million and a half brick.

HEAVY REAL ESTATE SALES

The Redcliff Realty Company disposed of over $50,000 worth of real estate during the past few days, mostly to Saskatchewan parties.

The property sold is all inside and is situated in the business section of what some day will be the business manufacturing city in the West.

Manager Farmer of the Imperial Bank has run for one of the County Company's houses and will keep bachelor's hall—for a little while.

One of the Glass City belles is finishing a diamond. One of the members of the brick plant's staff is going to build a new house soon. What's the answer?

But since Jack Rutherford has got the plough engine actually well will let the matter drop.

Any stray animals will be impounded in the future. Any parties looking for industrial sites will also be impounded and held till they consent to sign a contract.

C.P.R. agent "Nick" Nicholson is picking up Redcliff real estate. "Nick" and thoroughness both work for the same company so it seems quite probable that Mr. Thomas has handed out a quiet tip about the shops coming to Redcliff.

Ed Daniels says the wheat crop in the vicinity of Chicago is looking fine and that the Blackstone Hotel is nearly equal to the Hotel de Redcliff.

FATHER SLASHES GIRL WHO PLANS TO GET MARRIED

New York, June 2.—Mike Rotondo, who at last accounts was hiding in the woods of Van Cortlandt Park to escape the vengeance of a mob of his fellow-countrymen, probably won't get back—unless a policeman brings him—in time for the wedding of his pretty daughter Angelina, whom he stabbed five times yesterday afternoon at Two Hundred and Fourth Street and the Concourse, in the Bronx. If the girl is sufficiently recovered from her wounds by then she will be married Saturday to young Salvatore Delbene.

It was a spirit of profound opposition to the match which led the father to attack Miss Angelina. Only yesterday he learned that two weeks ago young Delbene had secured a license at the City Hall and that the girl had been secretly engaged in preparing her trousseau.

Rotondo was a widower. His daughter was his housekeeper, and he didn't want to lose her even though she had reached the marriageable age of twenty-two. First off he chased away young Delbene, the prospective bridegroom, who had been living up till then under the same roof with the Rotondos in a tenement at Villa avenue and Two Hundred and Fifth Street.

Then he insisted that his daughter should go with him to interview the priest, Father Scialo, on the subject of the obedience of children to their parents.

They had travelled three or four blocks when the young woman, who had some unwillingly that "fat, bloated away and ran. Rotondo pursued and overtook her and used his knife on her. Then he fled northward, pursued by a mob of laborers, who in holiday dress had been gathering for a religious procession in honor of the Lady of Mount Carmel. He dodged them in the thick masses.

At Fordham Hospital the surgeons found the girl was not fatally wounded. In fact, she was pronounced out of danger today. This morning Father Scialo, whose sympathies were strongly with the young couple, said he would marry them Saturday at the Church of St. Philip and Mary in Two Hundred and Seventh Street, of which he is pastor, providing the bride could leave the hospital. If she is still too weak to be moved, he will marry her as soon as the risk passes before the altar.

HIS BABY KILLED FATHER COULDN'T QUIT HIS POST

New York, June 1.—Fredrick Seeger, of No. 2005 Richmond Turnpike, Staten Island, an employee of the Department of Water Supply at New Springfield, bought a high power rifle some time ago, to use on hawks that were ruining his chicken yard. He kept the gun loaded in the kitchen, so that it would be handy when the hawks appeared.

Three-year-old May Seeger was the girl in a corner of the kitchen yesterday afternoon and dragged it out. While she was tugging the heavy rifle around the kitchen her mother was in the parlor entertaining visitors and knew nothing of the baby's perilous position.

Suddenly there was a shot. Mrs. Seeger ran to the kitchen to find the rifle bullet had torn through the child's nose and lodged in her eye. Dr. Wallace, summoned from the health infirmary, took the girl to the infirmary, where she died at 9:30 last night.

The father was notified of his
